Pray for Peace

In Friday's daily Mass readings this week, we hear the familiar story of St. Paul's conversion on his way to Damascus. After being struck blind, he was led into the city where Ananias prayed for him. At first Ananias was afraid because Saul was known for rounding up Christians and having them killed. But Ananias prayed for him and through this prayer, Saul's eyes were opened and he became one of the Church's greatest missionary saints.

It's important to point out that all of this happened in Damascus, which is located in Syria. Syria is one of the first regions to hear the Gospel. Christianity has existed there for almost 2000 years. Now, sadly, Syria is a war zone. Some have described it as hell on earth. The people are being attacked by Muslim Jihadists, as well as their own government with little help from outside and no one to turn to for help.

In an article from the Catholic News Agency, they report that since the beginning of the country's civil war in 2011, more than 13.5 million Syrians, including 6 million children, have been affected by a dire humanitarian crisis, with the majority of the population living in situations of food insecurity and without access to basic supplies. According to U.N. estimates, some 11.5 million people, 40 percent of whom are children, do not have access to adequate medical care. Hospitals have routinely been targeted in the fighting, and since the beginning of the war, nearly two-thirds of Syria's medical staff have fled the country.

Last January, Blessed Art came to our parish. The speaker was from Syria. Some of his family still lives in Syria. He shared with me some of the horrible situations that he has experienced. In fact, he is here in the United States because his life was threatened by Jihadists simply because he helped a Muslim family convert to Christianity. He gave me a piece of olive wood and asked me to pray for peace in Syria. He put a face on the tremendous suffering that the people of Syria are going through.

Many of you also bought rosaries or beautifully carved pieces of olive wood. The olive branch has long been a sign of peace. When we look at these or pray with them, let us remember our suffering brothers and sisters in Syria and pray for peace.

Whether or not you bought a piece of olive wood, let us all join together and pray for peace. Just as Ananias' simple prayer brought about peace to Paul's soul as well as between him and the Christians, so too will our prayers help bring about peace in this region.

Almighty eternal God, source of all compassion, the promise of your mercy and saving help fills our hearts with hope.

Hear the cries of the people of Syria; bring healing to those suffering from the violence, and comfort to those mourning the dead.

Empower and encourage Syria's neighbors in their care and welcome for refugees.

Convert the hearts of those who have taken up arms, and strengthen the resolve of those committed to peace.

O God of hope and Father of mercy, your Holy Spirit inspires us to look beyond ourselves and our own needs.

Inspire leaders to choose peace over violence and to seek reconciliation with enemies.

Inspire the Church around the world with compassion for the people of Syria, and fill us with hope for a future of peace built on justice for all.

We ask this through Jesus Christ, Prince of Peace and Light of the World, who lives and reigns for ever and ever.

Amen.

Fr. Troy Przybilla

When I call, answer me, O my just God,
you who relieve me when I am in distress;
have pity on me, and hear my prayer!
Lord, let your face shine on us.

Know that the LORD does wonders for his faithful one;
the LORD will hear me when I call upon him.
Lord, let your face shine on us.
